

CIVIL SERVICE
TO BE SOUGHT
FOR CHEMISTS

Chemical Society Wants
State Employees To Be Examined for Posts in Laboratories.

KICK-BACK SEEN
FROM EX-EMPLOYEES

Talmadge Declares, However, New Force Is Doing Better Work Than Brown Regime.

Efforts on the part of the Georgia
section of the American chemical society, aimed to place the chemists employed in the state chemical laboratory on a civil service basis, following resolutions passed by the chemists meeting Wednesday evening at the chamber of commerce, are but the result of attempts of former employees of the regime of J. J. Brown as commissioner of the state agricultural department to force their will on the present commissioner, Eugene Talmadge, commissioner, declared Friday afternoon.

"You can certainly expect a back kick from a number of men who have stayed in office for a good many years
by making campaign contributions to their political boss every two years,"
Mr. Talmadge charged.

The Georgia section of the American Chemical society Wednesday evening passed resolutions petitioning
the governor, and through him all parties whose obligations it is to supervise such matters, that immediate steps be taken to remove this department (the state chemical laboratory)
from the realm of politics and place
it upon either a civil service basis or preferably under the control of a selected board of citizens who do not hold public office.

Chemists See Menace.
The action of the chemists followed wholesale dismissal of all chemists employed by Mr. Brown as commissioner of agriculture.

The chemists charged that the "summary dismissal of the entire force of the state chemical laboratory by the new commissioner of agriculture, including the state chemist," resulted in a grave menace to public health in that "due to the sudden disruption of the routine work of the state chemist, the public health is now in grave
danger from the sale of adulterated,
unwholesome and decomposed foods,
such as milk, meats, fish and canned goods."

Commissioner Talmadge stated that the present 10 employees who replaced
the 19 under the Brown regime are "not only keeping up with all the work that is coming in, but are completing work which has accumulated since last February" under Mr. Brown.

Opposes Civil Service.
Representatives of the chemists presented Mr. Talmadge with a copy of the resolutions Friday at his office.

He told them that he "had done the one thing to get the chemical profession of Georgia out of politics by getting rid of the Brown employees of the state chemical laboratory."

The commissioner said Friday afternoon that "such a thing (civil service)
as that is absolutely preposterous
under a democratic form of government. I am absolutely against anything which tries to perpetuate anyone in office."

"We are educating and graduating chemists every year from the various colleges and universities in Georgia and why shouldn't they be given a chance?"

"Of the ten parties I employed in the laboratory I had never met or known anyone of them but one," Mr.
Talmadge said. "They were employed absolutely on their records."

Sought Expert Advice.
Mr. Talmadge said that he sought the advice of Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology, in selecting the best chemists possible for the state laboratory. Dr.
Brittain referred him to Dr. C. A.
Wells, member of the chemistry faculty of Georgia Tech. All appoint-

Verdict Expected
Today in Flogging
Trial at Toccoa

Jury Locked Up for Night
After Considering Evidence Three Hours Without Reaching Decision.

DEFENDANT'S ALIBI
OBJECT OF ATTACK

"Substitute Law and Order for Mob Rule," Is Appeal Made by Assistant Solicitor.

BY BEN COOPER.
Staff Correspondent.
Toccoa, Ga., July 8.—The fate of
W. G. Acree, head of the Easton-
High school, on trial here in Stephens superior court on a charge of participating in a flogging administered to Mrs. Ansley Bowers and her 15-year-old son, Loyd, June 11, is expected to be determined Saturday. The jury in the case was locked up tonight at 10:45 o'clock after having considered the evidence approximately three hours without agreeing on a verdict.

Consideration of the case will be resumed early Saturday morning.

The jury retired at its own request,
disappointing a crowd of 100 or more persons who had remained in the courtroom in hopes of a verdict tonight. A bailiff was summoned to the door of the jury room and requested to inform the court that no agreement on a verdict had been reached and that its members were ready for bed.

How many ballots had been taken
at that time and how the members stood was not divulged. The court assented immediately to the jury's request and the spectators, many of whom had sat through the two-day
trial, filed dejectedly out.

Evidence Ended.
The evidence in the trial ended this afternoon and several hours were consumed in arguments by the state and defense attorneys, after which Judge
I. H. Sutton, presiding, delivered his charge.

Opening argument for the state, E.
D. Kenyon, assistant solicitor general, appealed to the jury to "substitute law
and order for mob rule" and to "remove the blot on the name of Stephens county and the state of Georgia."

Pointing at Acree, the prosecutor addressed him directly, declaring:
"There is no doubt in my mind but what you are the leader of the gang that took this woman out and gave her that cowardly and dastardly beating."

The assistant solicitor was followed by George Goode, of Carnesville, assisting in the prosecution, who told the jury "it is in your province to end by your verdict this reign of terror and lawlessness in Stephens county."

"Belton Looney's cow," he declared,
"has become the most famous cow in the world not excepting the famous cow of Mrs. O'Leary which is popularly supposed to have started the great Chicago fire."

George Allen opened the argument
for the defense, confining his remarks to a discussion of the evidence and testimony, principally relating to the character of Acree and the recognition of his voice. Colonel B. B. Gaillard, of Gainesville, speaking for the defense, read the law on the subject of identification, reasonable doubt as to guilt and character and rose to heights of eloquence in his plea for the application of the golden rule to the defendant by the jury. "All we ask of you," he said in his concluding remarks, "is that you gentlemen of the jury, will give the defendant as fair a consideration as you would want if you were on trial under similar circumstances."

Judge J. H. Skelton, of Hartwell, chief of defense counsel, concluded
for the defense. He made an appeal to the jury for complete acquittal,
pointing out Acree's good character
and the alleged lack of evidence brought in by the state to disprove his guilt.

Solicitor General McMillan closed
for the state, speaking for an hour.
His argument was one of cold, impartial logic, in which he linked Acree
up with the gang of floggers and set

JEWISH LEADERS
GLAD TO ACCEPT
FORD'S APOLOGY

Even Sapiro Joins in General Rejoicing.
Dropping of Big Libel Suit Hinted.

New York, July 8.—(United News.)
Jewish leaders throughout the country
say they have accepted Henry Ford's apology for the long and bitter war fare he has waged against their race.
Even Aaron Sapiro, the Hebrew attorney who sued the automobile manufacturer for $1,000,000 charging libel against Jewish financiers, announced that the controversy would be settled
out of court.

Ford's sudden and unexpected retraction of all the anti-Jewish articles that have appeared in The Dearborn Independent, his weekly magazine,
brought words of praise from all sides.

Although many who commented upon the episode said they could not understand why Ford did not make the peace move sooner.

Ford's retraction and apology, a lengthy document in which he said he did not realize how far The Independent had carried its anti-Semitic campaign, was issued through Louis Marshall, president of the American Jewish committee, after Ford's representatives had consulted with him regarding the amount the manufacturer should make for the harm that he had done to Jews.

Marshall suggested the statement
and the curbing of The Independent's anti-Jewish policy. Ford agreed to both of these moves and carried them out.
The Independent henceforth will be merely a house organ of the Ford Motor company.

It remains to be seen what will happen to William Cameron, the editor of The Independent and the man who supervised the writing of the anti-Jewish articles which brought on the famous libel suit. It is understood that Cameron was not consulted by

'BLUE PARADISE'
TO CLOSE TODAY

Attendance Marks Endangered as Piquant Musical Comedy Approaches Final.

Only two more chances remain for Atlanta people to enjoy "The Blue Paradise," this week's offering of the Atlanta Municipal Opera company and those who do not attend this show will miss one of the most pleasing musical comedies ever presented in Atlanta by any company.

Unquestionably the performance of "The Blue Paradise" will go down in local opera history as one of the most finished productions ever offered here.

There is not a dull or lagging moment in the show. It is piquant, saucy and crowded with romance and gives some great opportunities to Louis Templeman, Miss Claire Madjet, the prima donna, and other members of the opera company.

"The Blue Paradise" is a modern musical comedy and scored a great hit when first offered in New York.
It is being presented here for the first time by any company and every person who has witnessed it has sung its praises in the highest terms.

Some attendance records for the last two days should be broken at the Erlanger theater Saturday if real merit in a show counts for anything. The old saying, "the best advertisement is a pleased customer" runs true
to form concerning "The Blue Paradise." The pleased customers who have enjoyed this show have been praising it all over town and those who miss it will miss one of the genuine treats of the season.

Delightful Music.
The music of "The Blue Paradise"
is delightful and there is a charming
love story running through its action.
The ensemble numbers are particularly effective and they are sung with rare finish by the great chorus organized for the summer opera season.
The musical numbers are of the catchy type and the audience leaves
the performance humming the tunes.
There is a keen vein of humor running through the show with Roland Woodruff handling most of the comedy end.

"The Blue Paradise" is a beautiful show from the standpoint of scenery and costumes. It is a Viennese production and the gaiety and sauciness of Vienna "Bohemian life" is depicted with fine effect.

Officers of the opera association
have pronounced "The Blue Paradise"
one of the greatest of the entire list of operas and their judgment has been backed by those who have had the opportunity of enjoying the show. The attendance figures for the week demonstrate that the offering is one that pleases, as new records for the season have been made, and with two large crowds on hand Saturday the "Blue Paradise" figures probably will be close to a record for the whole week.

COTTON NO LONGER
KING, LEVER SAYS

Power and Self-Sustaining Farmer Will Be Solutions of South's Problems, He Declares.

Representatives of the agricultural industry of Georgia from every part of the Empire state Friday night
placed their shoulders to the wheel
in an enthusiastic state-wide movement to raise $100,000 a year for two years to finance the Georgia association, when that body met at a banquet at the Atlanta Athletic club
with former Congressman A. F.
Lever, of South Carolina, as the association's guest.

County, district, city and community, one after another, reported that their quotas were oversubscribed, raised in full, underwritten or assured. Many rural communities reported over the top in the drive for funds before the actual campaign was under way.

Never before was Georgia so well represented agriculturally, speaker
after speaker brought out, in accounting the vital importance of the Georgia association to the rural life
of the commonwealth.

Congressman Lever, co-author of the Smith Lever act, the speaker of the evening, told the farmers' representatives to carry to every part of Georgia the solution to the farming problem of this state, the development of power resources and the emergence of the self-sustaining farmer.

"Cotton is no longer king," Mr.
Lever said. "Cotton must be made the slave of the South, to do our bidding. The attitude of the South must be changed. Don't forget cotton, but remember the hen and the cow and the pig and the wheat and oats and other crops."

Introducing Mr. Lever was Dr.
A. M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, at Athens who showed those present the pen
used by President Woodrow Wilson
when he signed the Smith-Lever act.
The pen was a gift to the college from Mr. Lever.

Growth of Dairying.
Dr. Soule told of the tremendous growth of dairying and produce in the state and said that in the last decade 240,000 boys of Georgia had enrolled in agricultural clubs.

Mr. Lever, Dr. Soule declared, had accomplished a great constructive work for the lasting benefit of the nation and of the South particularly when he fought for and won the passage in congress of the Smith-Lever act.

"The Georgia association, represented tonight by this remarkable group of men, has possibilities and potentialities
that mean revolutionizing the relation of agriculture to business in this state. Agriculture and business must get together to solve the question now confronting the rural districts."

It was a former governor and a former senator of South Carolina, Hammond, who before the war between the states originated the saying
"Cotton is king," Mr. Lever said.
"That has been the attitude of the south too long, he declared.

"That is where we have been weak,"
he asserted. "Our whole program must be reversed. Cotton, so far as the south is concerned, is dead."

WorldLeague

Officials Offer New Plan
for Holding Emergency Sessions.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution
and The Chicago Tribune.)
Geneva, July 8.—Emergency sessions of the League of Nations council will be held by telephone soon, according to the plans of Secretary General
Sir Eric Drummond.

Special telephone apparatus is being constructed for installation in the league headquarters, permitting Geneva to link up with Paris, London, Brussels, Berlin and Rome.

Thus, in case of extraordinary developments when a speedy decision is vital, Sir Eric need not waste time asking the chairman to call a special meeting but instead the principal members—British, French, German, Italian, Belgian and Japan can discuss emergencies over the wires, without fear of the lines being cut.

As the Japanese delegate is either
the ambassador at London or Paris it will be easy for the Japanese to be included in such sessions.

WINGARD MAKES
PLEA FOR LIFE
TO TRIAL JURY

Youth, in Dramatic Appeal, Says Slaying of Sweetheart Accidental
and Unpremeditated.

With Guy Wingard's statement that the shooting of his 17-year-old sweetheart, Jewel Duncan, was accidental and not prompted by a fit of jealous anger, the defense rested its case at 9:25 o'clock Friday night in the trial of the 20-year-old youth. Rebuttal by the state will begin when court resumes at 9 o'clock this morning.

The youth took the witness stand
in his own defense at 9:07 Friday night and for 23 minutes leaned forward in the witness chair and carni-vally pleaded with the jury to believe in his innocence. Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, before whom the case is being heard in the third criminal division of Fulton superior court, declared a recess until this morning, following announcement by defense that the defendant's statement closed their case.

It is believed that the state's rebuttal will consume approximately an hour and a half, followed by the arguments. The fate of the youthful admitted slayer is slated to rest in the hands of the jury shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Without a tremor in his voice, Wingard told the jury that the tragedy was purely an accident, that he had no malice in his heart and that he was devoted to the slain woman.
"I never dreamed of such a thing," Wingard asserted, "and Jewel and I had not been fussing. If I had known that the pistol had a single cartridge
in it, I would not have even had it in my hand. The pistol was lying in my lap and when I reached for it I

SHEFFIELD QUILTS
POST IN MEXICO

President Will Appoint
Successor Within Sixty Days; Colonel Noble Judah Urged by Deneen.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
(By Leased Wire to The Constitution
and The Chicago Tribune.)
Rapid City, S. D., July 8.—President Coolidge announced today his acceptance of the resignation of John Rockwell Sheffield as ambassador to Mexico.

The resignation, which was offered by Mr. Sheffield yesterday during his stay at the summer white house, will become effective as soon as the ambassador's 60-day leave of absence expires.

The president made it plain that a new man would be appointed for Mexico before this two months period
and that there would be no indefinite postponement of the appointment as had been suggested.

Colonel Judah Urged.
Several names are under consideration for this appointment, the president said, and no decision has been reached. One of the names coming strongly to the front in this connection is that of Colonel Noble B. Judah, of Chicago, who is being urged by Senator Deneen.

Colonel Judah's war record, his party
service, his work for service men
and his record in the Mexican situation have all been brought to the president's attention, also his standing as a lawyer.

Mr. Sheffield, who also is a lawyer, said he felt as though he had been let out of school after the president had released him from his duties. He had wanted to retire a year ago, the president stated, but had been persuaded to remain a few months longer. This extended to a year.

Mr. Sheffield is relinquishing his post because the attitude of Mexico City does not agree with him. He is leaving for a six weeks' trip in England and Scotland, in order to get a little rest from questions about "the Mexican situation."

Another reason for his resignation,
which is not intimated in Rapid City
at all, but which comes from those in close touch with Mexican affairs, is that he was out of tune with the administration policy, favoring more aggressive action on the part of this country.

Schoenfeld in Charge.
This change in the Mexico City ambassadorship comes on the eve of important developments in the commercial and diplomatic relations between the two countries and also on the eve of the Mexican presidential campaign. American affairs for the present will be left in charge of H. F.
Arthur Schoenfeld, charge d'affaires,
who was referred to by the president
as a very experienced man.

The president is keeping his attention on the situation in Mexico.

President Learns Part
Of His New Indian Name

EXECUTIVE MAY BE CALLED CHIEF STILLWATER

Rapid City, S. D., July 8.—(AP.) Half of the secret regarding the Indian name to be bestowed upon President Coolidge in Deadwood, S. D., next month, leaked out at the summer
white house today. The president understands that the name has something to do with water and that it may be Chief Stillwater, or something of that nature.

Chauncey Yellow Robe and the other Indian chiefs who have met in conference and agreed upon Mr. Cool-idge's name have been extremely tight-lipped about the matter and repeatedly cautioned inquirers that the name
would be kept secret until the president had been inducted into the Sioux territory.

So many invitations to visit places
in the west have reached President Coolidge that the business of declining them has become almost embarrassing.

It was pointed out that "Mr. Coolidge is about as busy in the Black Hills with official duties as he would be in Washington and that acceptances of invitations to leave his desk
encounter the same difficulties.

When the president came into the country and its people, he believes it
ed to live for awhile in the west and it was pointed out, in no sense with the desire to make a tour of the country. He hoped to find the same quiet and rest which he had at White Pine last summer.

While Mr. Coolidge would like to spend the summer months seeing the country and its people, he believes it entirely impossible to accept invitations other than those from nearby points.

After a session of the appropriations committee of the house held Friday afternoon, at which the committee voted to recommend a bill appropriating $5,000 for an automobile
for the use of the governor, the general assembly took an adjournment
until 10 o'clock Monday morning,
rounding out the third week of the present session with a heavy program
of work in prospect next week.

Neither of the houses took any major action Friday, as most of the time was devoted to a joint session at which former Congressman Lever, of South Carolina, was the speaker. The house deferred action on the Wilhoit gasoline tax allocation bill and the Harris substitute until next week and discussion of this bill will be resumed
when the house reconvenes Monday.

At the appropriations committee meeting Wednesday afternoon representatives of various educational institutions appeared to present the needs of their institutions. No action will be taken by the appropriations committee until the ways and means committee reports its plans as to revenue bills. This committee will make its report during the week.

Lever Speaks.
Shortly before the week-end recess was declared a joint session of the senate and house heard an address by former Congressman Lever, South Carolina banker, farmer and councillor of the Southwestern Bell, who provided for domestic service instruction among women of rural districts
throughout the country.

The speaker confined his address largely to problems confronting the southern farmer, and, as a remedy for farm evils, advanced consolidation of rural schools, aggressive exploitation of latent mineral resources and development of cheap water power.

With regard to water power of the south now considered an economic loss, Congressman Lever declared:
"Congress should do something about Muscle Shoals; that body's delay in deciding this matter has cost the south millions of dollars." This was the gist of his address.

Strange Sights To Greet
Byrd on South Pole Trip

ICE-COVERED MOUNTAINS TO BE SEEN

BY ALFRED P. RECK.
Washington, July 8.—(United News.)—What will Commander Richard E. Byrd see when he stands at the "bottom of the world," after completing his south pole flight?

Is there a mysterious, new continent awaiting to unfold itself before the eyes of the aerial explorer?

Royal Amundsen and Captain Robert Scott, leaders of two successful polar expeditions, say not, according to their records in the archives of the National Geographic society.

When Byrd stands at the very tip of the earth, he will see distant, ice-covered mountain peaks and the northwest, to the northeast and north,
nothing but the vast, rolling wastes
of an icy desert.

On all sides will be ice, under foot,
ice and above a "light, fine vaporous curtain spread across the sky but not dense enough to hide the sun."

AMERICAN HOPES FOR COMPROMISE
PROGRAM VANISH

Bridgeman Declares
Ships England Desires
"Are Merely Defensive Craft for Sea Police."

BY HENRY WALES.

(Copyright, 1927, by The Constitution
and The Chicago Tribune.)
Geneva, July 8.—Great Britain, determined to maintain a crushing superiority in big cruisers over the United States and thereby continue to rule the waves, suddenly took the aggressive tonight.

When First Lord of the Admiralty
Walter C. Bridgeman finished a long statement designed to clarify Great Britain's position regarding parity of naval strength with the United States
the tripartite naval conference called by President Coolidge again appeared to be bringing right toward the rocks.

Rosy Predictions Vanish.
The American delegates appeared startled by the British declarations.
The rosy predictions that the conference was near a solution of the deadlock over cruiser tonnage which were made following a meeting of the chief delegates, seemed to vanish.

Mr. Bridgeman, in outlining the empire's special requirements and needs,
stressed the alleged pernicious effect
of building 10,000-ton cruisers, "which are offensive and aggressive" whereas England's pet cruisers, under 7,500 tons, "are merely defensive craft for sea police."

Great Britain has 20 cruisers above
7,500 tons, built, under construction or projected—seventeen 10,000-ton ships, one 8,000-ton cruiser and two of 7,500 tons, according to experts here.

The United States has laid the keels
for two, the Pensacola and Salt Lake,
and the appropriations now available
will not even pay for drafting plans sufficient to bring the American cruiser strength up to England's.

Never Agreed to Parity.
Mr. Bridgeman then declared that Great Britain never agreed to complete parity of naval strength with the United States.

"The accord for equal forces at Washington referred to capital ships and after that no agreement was reached," Mr. Bridgeman said. "Everybody could build what they liked. We think the best standard is the needs of a country. Let the powers state what they want and reach an agreement. Let it rest with the nations. We do not dispute the American claim for parity,
but we sometimes ask ourselves if the needs of Great Britain and the United States are exactly the same and if

UNIFICATION HIT AT A. M. E. MEETING

Palmetto, Ga., July 8.—(Special.) The third day's session of the Christian Endeavor league of the Atlanta conference of the A. M. E. church was featured by the annual address of Bishop J. S. Flipper, head of the A. M. E. church in Georgia. Bishop J. S. Flipper spoke of the impracticability of uniting the African Methodist church with the other colored Methodist churches of the United States and urged the ministers to vote for non-union when the question is presented to the members. The league endorsed a resolution asking the general conference to return Bishop Flipper to preside over Georgia for the next four years. Addresses were delivered touching the progress of the colored people in the south by Rev. B. R. Holmes, J. H. Lewis, B. V. Thornton, J. A. Hadley, J. L. Butler, Dean W. L. Wiley and others. The annual sermon was delivered by Rev. J. N. Miller, of Atlanta. The closing session was featured by songs rendered by the quartet of the Holmes Institute. Rev. J. H. McFarlin presided. The convention will close with a missionary mass meeting in the First A. M. E. church.

London, July 8.—After 20 seconds of bidding a Rembrandt masterpiece changed hands for 30,000 guineas (more than $150,000) during a record sale at Christie's this afternoon. The picture, "Portrait of a Man," was the greatest prize of the Ross collection, consisting of 29 canvasses which brought a total of $875,000. Both the Rembrandt and a Turner, which brought $145,000, provided a record for English sales. The collection, which was brought here from Montreal, was assembled by the banker, the late James Ross.

CAROLINA STORM DAMAGE IS HEAVY

Charlotte, N. C., July 8.—(AP)—One death is known to have been caused and property damage running well into the thousands of dollars done by a wind, rain and electrical storm that late yesterday and last night swept North Carolina virtually from end to end. Reports today indicated that heavy damage had been done at a number of places.

Lightning killed Ed Lavender, a farmer, near Rutherfordton, while he was working in the field. A mule was also killed.

Telephone, telephone and power communications were virtually paralyzed for several hours last night with Winston-Salem suffering the most. The Twin City was cut off from outside communication for three or four hours. Power lines were cut by falling trees causing a loss to the Southern Power company of several thousands of dollars. The total damage at Winston-Salem is fixed at around $25,000.

The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies and the Southern Bell and American Telephone and Telegraph companies reported many poles down in various places and complete severance of connections with a number of cities.

In Wake county several barns were blown down, trees tossed against houses and Raleigh was virtually isolated for a short time late yesterday. The wind reached a velocity of 40 miles an hour.

Greensboro suffered heavily from flooded basements and streets when 2 to 3 inches of rain accompanied by a 60-mile wind, fell. Trees were blown down, plate glass windows smashed and automobiles wrecked.

Asheville had heavy rains as did Charlotte. The rain here was accompanied by high winds.

The records believed to have been broken were duration and distance for the 1,000-kilogram pay load and duration and distance for the 2,000-kilogram pay load.

The previous record for the 1,000 and 2,000-kilogram loads was five hours and four minutes and the distance covered 500.3 miles. Lieutenant Connell hoped to double the time and distance, alighting some time tonight.

Sylvania, Ga., July 8.—(Special.) Brick church, near Mobley Pond in Screven county and one of the oldest Methodist churches in this section of the state, will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the founding of that church on July 21. This church was organized in 1827, and has been in active service continuously since that time. A basket dinner will be served on this occasion and a large number of people is expected from various parts of the state.

Dr. W. C. Lovett, of Atlanta, who was born and reared within a few miles of Brick church, will preach the sermon of the day.

FLIER IS SATISFIED WITH LEVINE'S PLANE

Le Bourget, France, July 8.—(AP)—Michael Drouhin, the French flier, on his arrival here tonight, after piloting the monoplane Columbia to Croydon, England, and back, declared that he was satisfied with the American airplane, and confirmed that he intended to fly from Paris to New York. Drouhin said he found the Columbia easy to pilot, but wanted to change the compass before trying the trans-Atlantic flight. The French flier took a wide swing eastward in returning from England, covering more than 300 miles.

APARTMENT BLAZES;

More than 60 families lived in the building, which was six stories high. It was located in the heart of the city.

DOUBLE WEDDING

Berlin, July 8.—(AP)—Berlin's "flying sky pilot," the Rev. Herbert Teichmann, who officiated at Tuesday's double wedding in an airplane, has been suspended from office by the Evangelical church consistory, which rejects aerial marriages on the score that they are a degradation of a serious religious ceremony.

Criticism of the Rev. Dr. Teichmann is not confined to church circles, as the newspapers generally condemn the innovation, which one writer declares "exposed the word of God to the roar of propellers" and brought the church into competition with mundane sport.

The bridegrooms in the weddings at which the Rev. Dr. Teichmann officiated were employees of the Robbaird airplane works. The ceremonies were performed while the airplane soared over the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial church. Music was furnished by a phonograph.

COMMISSION PLAN BEATEN IN TAMPA

Tampa, Fla., July 8.—(AP)—Commission government in Tampa may soon be a memory if campaign pledges of 15 candidates for "representative government" elected yesterday are fulfilled.

Running on a ticket advocating a new administration along councilmanic lines, the 15 men were elected by a sweeping majority to form a charter board charged with the duty of drafting and submitting a new city charter. The majority of the winning ticket ranged from 1,452 to 1,829 in the tabulation of individual candidates.

When the new charter is drafted it will be submitted to the voters for approval or rejection following which a third election will be called to fill the newly created office or, in case the charter is rejected, to fill the present offices with newly elected candidates.

The new board is composed of T. W. Ramsey, T. N. Henderson, D. B. McKay, Tom Palmer, Charles Bardin, Karl Whitaker, Tom Whitaker, W. J. Twitt, Jaime Pendas, William LeDuc, Isaac S. Craft, Paul Fusillo, W. H. Campbell, P. R. Robin and T. P. Kelly.

Birmingham, Ala., July 8.—(AP)—Warrants have been sworn to against approximately 15 Jefferson and Blount county residents, believed to have been members of a masked and hooded band that Sunday night, June 26, severely flogged Jeff Calloway, 19-year-old orphan, at Oneonta, near here.

Definite announcement as to when the warrants will be served was withheld by county and state forces at work on the investigation.

RIGHT NOW ham offers you a very special value. It is a big year for both ham and bacon, and your table can benefit as well as your purse. Not for a good while has there been a real "ham summer" like this one.

Take advantage of these special values and give your family more kinds of ham dishes—more varieties. Every part of the ham is delicious when cooked in its own proper way.

Ask your meat dealer about these various cuts of ham and the uses for each. You will be surprised to find what a standby ham can be to the housewife in warm weather. And above all you will be agreeably surprised at the reasonableness of this meat from a market standpoint at this time.

GOVERNMENT URGED TO PAY FLOOD COST

New Orleans, July 8.—(AP)—The Mississippi river commission will recommend to congress that the whole of the expense of the recent flood fight in the lower valley, including restoration of levees and the closing of all crevasses, be borne by the federal government, members of the commission announced at a public meeting held here today.

The announcement, made by Colonel Charles L. Potter, chairman of the commission, came near the end of the meeting, which was held for the purpose of hearing suggestions on flood control.

Colonel Potter said that he learned while in Washington last week that steps were being taken to place $2,000,000 at the disposal of the commission immediately for use in restoring levees. This would be added to whatever funds the commission already has at its disposal.

When this fund is available, Colonel Potter said, the levee boards whose resources have been exhausted, making them unable to put up their share of the cost of levee restoration, will be excused and their portion taken from the commission fund. However, he said the money is to be advanced with the understanding that it is in the form of a loan and to be paid back later.

Following the hearing the members of the commission left for Memphis, where a similar meeting is scheduled for tomorrow.

FLOGGING VERDICT EXPECTED TODAY

forth the points of evidence introduced by the state to prove its case against the school principal.

Presents Cold Logic

McMillan pointed out that the state was not trying to persecute Acree, but wanted to get at the bottom of the flogging, and that if the jury was not convinced of his guilt by the evidence and testimony, he wanted Acree acquitted. But, he continued, he believed that the state had proved its case on Acree, pointing out that disinterested witnesses had declared, impeached the testimony of defense witnesses, Judge I. H. Sutton, presiding at the trial of Acree, instructed the jurors to their duty, his talk requiring 30 minutes. Judge Sutton set forth the law on the admissibility of evidence, impeachment of witnesses, character of the defendant and of witnesses, recognition of identity, particularly in the case of Acree, and the law on murder, assault with intent to murder, and assault and battery.

The charge against Acree is assault with intent to murder, Judge Sutton instructing the jury that this offense is punishable by imprisonment for a minimum of two or more years, or 10 years, the sentence being in the discretion of the jurors. He fully charged them as to their duty as members of the jury and said that in the event the testimony and evidence did not warrant assault with intent to murder, that they could, if they found the defendant guilty return

Atlanta-New York Mail Plane To Be Last Word

The Mailwing, shown above, recently completed at the factory of the Pitcairn Aircraft corporation to carry mail between Atlanta and New York, is the very last word in airplanes. Under test the ship has developed a maximum speed of 135 miles and contains the latest safety devices and will carry 600 pounds of mail.

Inauguration of the Atlanta-New York air mail service this fall will place in service the "Mailwing," specially designed and constructed by the Pitcairn Aircraft factory, of Bryn Athyn, Pa., for service as a carrier. It was announced Friday in a special message from the Pitcairn company, holders of the contract.

Mailwing is now undergoing the severe test of the national air tour, and is said to be the fleetest and most substantial constructed plane in the entire group. It is built especially for night flying and equipped with the most modern devices known to the air industry, possessing many exclusive and unusual features.

The ship is a biplane similar in design to the Pitcairn Fleetwing, but powered with the Wright whirlwind J-5 motor, the same engine as used on Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis. This motor delivers 200 horsepower at 1,800 r.p.m., while at a maximum speed of 2,000 r.p.m. the power developed is 225 horsepower. There are no passenger seats, the forward space in the fuselage being given to a large mail compartment with a capacity of 600 pounds, or about 30,000 pieces of mail. This compartment is hooded and can be locked.

The verdict on a charge of assault and battery, a lesser offense.

Acree Testifies

Acree, the defendant, made a long statement in his own defense this morning, denying all connection with the flogging and giving an account of his whereabouts on Saturday night, June 11. Acree claimed that he was doctoring a sick cow for M. B. Looney, a farmer.

Acree spoke substantially as follows: "Gentlemen of the jury: You all know me. I have been in this county four years. I came here as county demonstrator and worked at that until a year ago, when I went to Eastanollee High school and have been employed there ever since. My life has been an open book as the public generally knows. You've heard the testimony and there are one or two things I want to call your attention to."

Acree then, speaking slowly but distinctly, and pausing frequently, outlined his case, stating that he was at Eastanollee in 1926, but did not make a public talk at the commencement exercises as claimed by the state, nor the athletic exercises where Loyd Bowers claimed to have heard his voice. Acree claimed that he was occupied by a contest in mathematics and had no time to make a talk then. "Loyd is absolutely mistaken about having heard my voice there and Mrs. Bowers is also," he continued. "I have never talked to Mrs. Bowers and did not know her until the first of this week, when she was pointed out to me. Neither did I know Loyd until he was pointed out to me. I don't believe they knew me."

"You know the kind of work I have been engaged in. Loyd had no opportunity to learn anything about me unless he was taking the work under me. I haven't been thrown with the town boys to talk to them, and Loyd does not even associate with my boys. I don't hang around the streets and talk."

Acree then outlined his activities on Saturday, June 11, stating that he worked at home, coming down town during the day to get a plow sharpened. After supper he came to town to get groceries and see about selling a plow, meeting Jess Jordan, Mose Jordan and Looney in their car, when they told him about Looney's sick cow. It was a common thing for him to doctor sick cows, Acree said, and then went on to assert that he was at Looney's house with the two Jordan men and Looney during the hours the flogging took place.

"I don't believe even the attorneys believe I did it," he said. "I have never been to the Bowers home and am not even intimately acquainted with the men I am indicted with, as my work does not throw me with them."

Bowers Day Recalled.

An attempt to identify Looney as the man who held Loyd Bowers while his mother, Mrs. Bowers, was being whipped, was made by the state, Loyd Bowers being recalled to the stand this morning. Bowers claimed that he recognized Looney, with whom he had not been familiar heretofore, by the fact that he chewed tobacco and wore "comfort shoes." He said that he recognized Looney when he took the witness stand Thursday for the defense.

Although at first positive in his identification, Bowers under a merciless cross-examination from the defense wavered and failed to substantiate his identification of Looney, hanging his head and refusing to answer when Colonel J. H. Skelton, of defense counsel, asked him if he was absolutely positive if Looney was the man who held him. Bowers was then called down from the stand.

Identification of the automobiles in which Mrs. Bowers and Loyd were carried by the mob of floggers was also attempted by the state, but with doubtful success. The state attempted to prove that one of the cars belonged to Mose Jordan and that another was seen standing in Elmer Clark's yard by Bowers shortly after the whipping. Efforts to impeach the testimony of defense witnesses who furnished an alibi for Acree occupied the state this morning, the prosecution seeking to show that statements of the defense witnesses as to the whereabouts of Acree and the other joint defendants on the night of the flogging were untrue. Witnesses were introduced by the state to prove that Acree did speak at Eastanollee school in May, 1926, as was claimed by Loyd and Mrs. Bowers, and that Mose Jordan was at the Toccoa ice plant on the night of the flogging, which he had denied on the stand.

W. M. McKay, former member of the Stephens county board of education, and his daughter, Miss Marjorie McKay, were the first witnesses of the morning, both testifying for the defense that Acree did not speak at Eastanollee school in May, 1926. They were followed by Winston Owens, attorney, notary public and justice of the peace, who testified that Loyd Bowers obtained affidavits before him by which to procure the warrants for the arrest of Acree and the other joint defendants, Claude Groover, El-

YOUNG BAPTISTS DISCUSS WHISKY

Philadelphia, July 8.—(AP)—Liquor consumption by the youth of America was under discussion again today at the convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America in an open forum presided over by Representative Grant M. Hudson, of Michigan.

In marked contrast to the testimony of some of the delegates yesterday that there was much drinking among young people, speakers today asserted that they had found but very little, especially among students.

Mary Mackrell, a student of Temple university, told the conference that she had attended many affairs of her school and had never seen any student intoxicated.

A student of the University of Minnesota said there was some drinking at his college, but added that the students themselves were strapping out the practice.

Edgar R. May, social worker and delegate to the convention from Kansas City, who was among the speakers yesterday, said today that he had made no specific charges of drinking among the young people of his home town, the west side branch of the First Baptist church.

"I did not say drinking parties had been held in the basement of our church," said Mr. May, "but I did say I had seen young people come into the social rooms of the west side branch who were under the influence of liquor. However, the young people, the west side branch of the First Baptist church."

Mr. May endeavored to make it clear that his statements of yesterday had no reference to any special church, and said he had heard an explanation to the Rev. A. J. Haggitt, pastor of the Kansas City church, who took exception to Mr. May's remarks.

"I wish to reiterate," said Mr. May, "the statement that on certain occasions I neither drink nor smoke on my own, and I am not a member of any church, but I do not name any particular congregation."

YOUNG MEMBERS DRANK OR SMOKED AT MEETING.

Savannah, Ga., July 8.—(AP)—An emphatic denial that liquor had been served at the party given by the Baptist Young People's union in Savannah was made by W. J. Mobley, president of the City union, this morning in answer to the statement of Edgar R. May, of Kansas City, that he had attended such a party. The statement of Mr. May was made at a B. Y. P. U. convention in Philadelphia.

Mobley stated May had spent several weeks in Savannah, had visited the union and had had charge of one of the regular programs. Mobley terms the statement of May "a premeditated falsehood." He said if May had attended such a party in Savannah the B. Y. P. U. had nothing to do with it. A meeting of B. Y. P. U. leaders was held here today to consider the matter.

JEWISH LEADERS GLAD TO ACCEPT APOLOGY

Ford regarding his statement of retraction, although at the libel trial several months ago he testified that he believed all the anti-Jewish charges to be true. The hearing was declared a mistrial, and now that Ford has made his apology, William H. Gallagher, Sapiro's chief counsel, says the suit will be dropped. The settlement out of court will be announced at Detroit within a week.

The Sapiro libel suit was regarded as the real test of the efficacy of the Dearborn Independent's campaign. Its impending settlement indicates more than anything else the spirit in which the Ford statement has been accepted by American Jews.

"Mr. Ford's action reflects credit upon himself," said many of the leading Jewish business and professional men who commented upon the affair. Others described it as "magnanimous" and "worthy of a great man."

"It marks a new era of good will and understanding among the races," said Charles Marshall.

Julius Rosenwald, multi-millionaire mail order executive, declared "It is never too late to make amends, and I congratulate Mr. Ford upon his action."

Jewish leaders who expressed amicable sentiments regarding Ford's statement included Nathan Burkan, New York attorney; Edwin Franco Goldman, Arthur Garfield Hays, Robert S. Marx, Aaron Sapiro's law partner; Maurice Block, New York state representative, and many others.

GALLAGHER SEES SETTLEMENT NEAR.

Detroit, July 8.—(United News).—Aaron Sapiro's $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford will be settled out of court, according to William H. Gallagher.

The terms of the settlement will be announced within a week, the Jewish farm cooperative organizer's lawyer said.

The suit was filed because of the billiard's disavowal of the anti-Jewish policy of his magazine, the Dearborn Independent.

Gallagher said Sapiro had sued Ford for vindictive reasons, and that the settlement of the suit would be a public recognition of "the anti-Jewish campaign carried on in The Dearborn Independent since 1920."

"I am in receipt of your letter to Earl J. Davis accompanied by your statement regarding the long series of vituperative articles which since May, 1920, has appeared in The Dearborn Independent and which contains the most violent attacks upon the Jews you have ever made," Gallagher said. "I declare that after an examination of those articles you feel shocked and mortified because of the harm which they have done, and you ask for our forgiveness."

"For 20 centuries we Jews have been accustomed to forgive insults and injuries, persecution and intolerance, hoping that we might behold the day when brotherhood and good-will would be universal. We had fondly hoped that in this blessed republic, with its glorious constitution and its just laws, it would be impossible to encounter the hatred and rancor to which our brethren have been and still are subjected in other lands. We could not at first credit the information that The Dearborn Independent had permitted itself to be made the vehicle for disseminating exploded falsehoods and vicious concoctions of villainous minds, invented by adventurers who had barely found asylum here when they attempted to introduce the exotic growth of anti-Semitism."

"Suffered Anguish."

"Happily such excesses could no flourish on American soil. Happily the enlightened press of this country treated them with contempt and with unworthy notice. But we Jews none the less suffered the anguish of a horrible past, and the sorrow that, in ## spite of the progress of civilization there were those who stood ready to misunderstand us. What seemed most mysterious was the fact that you whom we have never wronged and whom we had looked upon as a kindly man should have lent yourself to such a campaign of vilification apparently carried on with your sanction.

"The statement which you have sent me gives us assurance of your retraction of the offensive charges, of your proposed change of policies in the conduct of the Dearborn Independent, of your future friendship and good-will, of your desire to make amends, and what is to be expected from any man of honor, you couple these assurances with a request for pardon. So far as my influence can further that end, it will be exerted, simply because there flows in my veins the blood of ancestors who were inured to suffering and nevertheless remained steadfast in their trust in God. Referring to the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount, Israel's Transfigured said that we Jews are after all the only Christians He might have added that it is because essentially the spirit of forgiveness is a Jewish trait."

"It is my sincere hope that never again shall such a recurrence of ancient superstition manifest itself upon our horizon."

Marshall's Statement.

From Mr. Marshall, resting at Saranac Lake, N. Y., the same agency received the following details of the developments preceding the issuance of the Ford statement:

"Earl J. Davis, of Detroit, formerly assistant attorney general of the United States, and Joseph Palma, of New York, both friends of Henry Ford, came to me as his representatives. Mr. Marshall said 'and stated that Ford was satisfied that those whom he had put in charge of the Dearborn Independent had taken advantage of him by publishing a series of articles attacking Jews, and as he had been convinced that all of the charges made against them individually and collectively were without foundation and unjust, he wished to know what could be done to put an end to these conditions.'

"I stated very fully the gross injustice and the harm that had been done by these publications, both here and abroad. I told him that the Jews had been grievously wounded by these attacks, and that mere words would not heal the injury."

"I stated that there were a number of things that must be done. Particularly that there must be a complete retraction of all the false charges made, an apology, a disavowal of the attacks, and amends of the wrong. After further discussion they said they would report to Ford what had taken place in the interview."

"Some days later," Mr. Marshall continued, "they called on me again and indicated that Ford would accept these conditions. There followed further discussion over the telephone and otherwise, with the result that on Tuesday of last week I was told that Ford was ready to sign the document which I received on Friday of last week with a letter addressed by Ford to Davis asking him and Palma to deliver his signed statement to me," Mr. Marshall declared.

Tallahassee, Fla., July 8.—(AP)—Bernie Wilson, sent up from Madison county for seven years for robbery, escaped from a road camp near Shady Grove, it was reported today to the state prison bureau here.

THE PASSING OF PIONEERS

BY SAM W. SMALL

Tributes Due to Some Who Have Served and Honored the City

The passing of pioneer citizens always clouds the atmosphere of any community and in Atlanta such events bring with them a peculiar sadness to survivors who shared with them all the vicissitudes of our history up to present days.

The passing early in the week of Mrs. Park Woodward was the occasion of acute sorrow to a great circle of her friends of many decades. She was the daughter of one of the real founders of Atlanta, Judge Clark Howell, whose name is imbedded in our first foundations and lives with vigor and honor in his descendants and who still serve and distinguish modern Atlanta.

Mrs. Woodward inherited in conspicuous measures the noble characteristics of her father and the refined graces of her mother, one of the ancient regime in Georgia. In her childhood she was a social favorite, admired and celebrated by all who knew her. She married Colonel Park of Woodworth, formerly an attaché of the Constitution, popular in military and civil circles, and called at a critical juncture to superintend the vital water service of the growing city. He took charge of a rather ragged institution and by careful business methods and close study of engineering problems involved, built up the service to high and satisfying efficiency. He managed the transfer of the plant from Lakewood to its present superb location, and when "called from labor to rest" left behind him a record of civic probity and effective administration of which the whole city is proud.

Mrs. Woodward survived to her 75th year, distinguished for a flawless wifehood and reigned as a mother whose devotion was peerless. She did not crave the excitements of the social world for which she had great qualifications, but in the pure joys of domestic life, the duties of her church, family, and the honor that came to her children, led a beautiful and enviable life.

Captain Clark Howell Woodward, her eldest son, graduated from the United States naval academy in 1898, was immediately sent to the flagship of Commodore Schley and served that intrepid fighter in the fateful naval battle of Santiago bay. He has risen to rank and distinction in our American navy.

Mrs. Woodward's friends will long treasure the memory of her sanctified life and will commend it as a most worthy example to those who aspire to admirable wifehood and near divine motherhood.

Another departure to the bourne beyond the ken of men was that of Dr. John Z. Lawrence, the Masonic and medical fraternities of Atlanta learned of his passing Tuesday evening with sensations of acute sorrow. He was the son of that true pioneer, Dr. Lawrence, Atlanta's first merchant-jeweler, and one of her bravest and most faithful citizens for nearly two generations. No man in our midst ever stood more stalwart and loyal for the best things in individual and civic life than this apostolic-looking Dr. Lawrence.

John was the writer's playmate in the civil war times and even in boyhood he gave proof of his high inheritance from his father and a most lovable mother. He was a most lovable, generous and always eager to serve a friend or an unfortunate fellow-man.

Having chosen a medical career he prepared for it methodically and devotedly and for many years was one of the most efficient and esteemed physicians of the city.

He had an esoteric spirit that drew him early into the Masonic order and to its mysteries and humane ministrations he gave the finest that was in his soul. Few men have lived and labored in this superb city who carried into all affairs a cleaner and more approved character than my old classmate and bedfellow, Dr. John Lawrence.

Turning from the biers of the departed I went out yesterday to chat awhile with one who yet lingers with us, with mind alert and memories keen, although last month he counted by his 80th milestone. All our old-timers knew Ed Murphy in the days of Atlanta, following the civil war, that truly tried men's souls. This vigorous town was overlaid with the wreckage from disbanded armies and the flossam of social chaos. Often life belonged only to him who could shoot first. The day was filled with noontime derelicts and the nights with the pestilences of footpads, burglars, shoe-string gamblers and just plain thugs.

But there was one man in the city whose face was as bright as the sun and whose name was feared by the whole underworld of criminals. That was Ed Murphy, the detective.

When I say "the detective" I am talking about an artist in the detection and capture of criminals. This later Sherlock Holmes fellow, even in fiction, had nothing on Ed Murphy. He disdained tin-horn muckers and demagogues. He hunted big game and generally brought home the fellow he went to get.

It was Ed Murphy who captured the long-elusive giant negro, Wiley Redding, who kept the people of the city in terror for so long a season.

With an eye like an eagle and a heart like a lion, whenever Ed was commissioned to find a "wanted" man he followed him noiselessly, unknown even to his newspaper sleuths, and shortly would "fetch him in" and jail him.

No man ever served law and public security in Atlanta better than Ed Murphy, brother of Anthony Murphy, of both war and civic fame. It was a distinct joy to sit with him and turn over the leaves of many historic days in his many morn'g.

Ed was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g.

Ed was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g.

Ed was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g.

Ed was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g.

Ed was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g.

Ed was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g. He was a man of many morn'g.

DINNER TONIGHT WILL HONOR TATE

William E. Tate, of Atlanta, recently elected national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, will be honored at a reception and banquet given under the auspices of the Woodrow Wilson chapter of the Disabled American Veterans, leaders and members of veterans' and civic organizations, in the civic room of the Ansley hotel at 7 o'clock Saturday evening.

Commander Tate, prior to his election as national commander, was state commander of the Georgia department of Disabled Veterans, a member of the board of directors of the Atlanta post of the American Legion and an officer in other local veterans organizations. Last June he was general chairman in charge of entertaining the national convention of Disabled Veterans that met in Atlanta.

FLIM-FLAM GAME WORKED ON WOMAN NETS SHARK $200

Americus, Ga., July 8.—(Special.) An ancient flim-flam game, worked upon an American negro woman by two unknown negroes Thursday night, netted the "sharks" $200 in cash. Lulu Bryant, the victim, drew her savings out of the postal savings bank and gave the money into the custody of the unknown negroes upon their representation that they had found a $100 bill in a pocket book near her home.

After giving her money to the strangers, the Bryant woman waited several hours for them to return before notifying the police department. It was later ascertained that the two men purchased tickets for Atlanta and Macon at the Bryant woman's expense.

After receiving the Bryant woman's money.

U. S. AMBASSADOR TO MEXICO QUILTS

President Coolidge Praises Sheffield

Rapid City, S. D., July 8.—(AP) The courage and ability with which James R. Sheffield met difficult situations, at Mexico City has been commended greatly to the continuation of peaceful relations between the United States and the Mexican government, President Coolidge wrote Mr. Sheffield today in accepting his resignation as ambassador to Mexico.

state, await analysis and that these samples cannot promptly and accurately be analyzed by chemists inexperienced and untrained in this class of work.

It was further said at the meeting that the important work of inspection and control of the oyster beds of the state in progress in cooperation with the United States public health service is at a standstill. The Georgia coast, they pointed out, promises to become one of the important oyster producing regions of the country and the protection of the public health from the menace of typhoid and other dangerous bacteria is of paramount importance.

Speakers charged that the farmers of the state are left without adequate protection as to composition of insecticides and are liable to imposition by the sale of adulterated and worthless products, due to new and inexperienced employees in the state chemical laboratory.

tion on the situation and will personally direct the policy on any important issue.

Such an issue in the nature of a test case on the retroactive features of the Mexican constitution is to come to a decision soon. Mr. Sheffield refused to discuss the nature of this test case, but it was too important and that information on this would have to come from the state department.

The Mexican elections present a situation which may easily result in violence. While early information has been to the effect that General Obregon would be the next president, with the support of Calles, it now appears that these two may be on the verge of a break. The new rivals for elections coming into view are General Gonzalez, General Serrano and General Calles, each of whom is credited with communistic tendencies. Calles may support Morones. The army is said to be against Obregon.

Mr. Talmadge said that he found all ten employees friendly to his campaign against Mr. Brown last year, and that none of them were of any kin to him by blood or marriage.

Commissioner Talmadge stated Friday afternoon that only one of the ten present employees of the state chemical laboratory applied for a position with the department of agriculture.

W. A. Morgan, the new state chemist, graduated from Georgia Tech with the class of '21. He obtained his M. S. degree at the University of Pittsburgh in 1926. For five years he was a research chemist at the Georgia experiment station. Dr. Morgan, who is from Demorest, was first introduced to Mr. Talmadge by Dr. Wells, of Georgia Tech, after the new chemist's resignation assured office, and the two had never met before that time, Dr. Morgan said Friday afternoon.

The commissioner of agriculture will make recommendations only to the general assembly if the civil service or a like bill is presented at this session, he said.

SOLONS WILL AID RURAL CARRIERS

Georgia Rural Letter Carriers' association, in 24th annual convention here were assured Friday that their interests would be forwarded in congress by United States Senator Walter F. George and Congressman E. E. Cox, of the second district, when the two representatives of Georgia addressed the session at the Ansley hotel.

Senator George declared that he had never dealt with a more reasonable and fair people in their requests to their representatives than the rural carriers. He said he would introduce legislation to improve the conditions of the rural carriers, whom he described as "the father of rural free delivery."

Congressman Cox asserted that he would join with Senator George in the furtherance of any legislation which would better the conditions of the carriers, both in service and in regard to their retirement.

Reports of the credentials committee, the association's secretary, delegates to the national convention at Philadelphia, the committee on constitution and by-laws and the principal delegates committee were heard.

On the subject of better and universal schools for our native Anglo-Saxon children, Mr. Lever was equally wise and emphatic. It is not only a duty to us, but a need of civilization that we are letting so many of our pure American posterity grow up in illiteracy, while the foreign born and native born in eastern and mid-western states are given the best and finest educational facilities to be found anywhere on the globe.

There is absolutely no defense for a policy in Georgia that will perpetuate another two years our inadequate public school system.

I am wondering what in the world got into Ernest Camp's breakfast party to make him locate handsome Representative Jim Flunt again in the senate? He used a quaint old saying, "I like to divide my Spaulding's with you people down here with other countries." They prefer the distinction he gives them as their very own representative.

And that sort of bill ought to have more conservative treatment than a semi-lunatic reference to the committee on "hygiene and sanitation." Ye gods!

the Georgia section of the American Chemical society in session Wednesday, July 6, 1932, wish to present to the governor of the state of Georgia and through him to the proper authorities, the following resolutions:

"It is the opinion of the chemists of the state of Georgia, that the state laboratory bear an important relation to the peace, safety, welfare, and health of the state; and further, the efficiency of such laboratories depends upon the quality of the work of the chemists and upon a group of well-trained and experienced chemists with a reasonable tenure of office."

End—Live.

"We believe further that the efficiency of this organization may be greatly enhanced by the appointment of a permanent chairman, who shall be elected by the members of the organization, and in this way endeavor to live the lives and welfare of the citizens of the state. We, therefore, petition the governor of the state of Georgia and through him to the proper authorities, that he take immediate steps to remove this department from its present location, and place it upon either a civil service basis or, preferably under the control of a properly selected board of citizens who shall be selected on their merits and ability to properly control and direct the workings of the scientific staff to the best advantage of the citizens of Georgia."

SPOTLIGHTING THE SOLONS

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Legislature and All of Us Want That National Convention.

Ex-Congressman Lever, of South Carolina, made a very cogent and convincing speech to the Georgia general assembly yesterday. Mr. Lever is an acknowledged expert in agricultural information, with experience in the practical details of farming, especially of the kinds most indigenous and profitable in the southeastern states.

He is quite right in his judgment that the economic conditions existing in the south can safely put all his eggs in his cotton basket. The great fertilizer act is taking over a monopoly of plantation cotton raising and can produce and market cheaper than any small farmer in the southeast. That will soon mean that our less-farmers must turn to home-support farming with cotton for a cash surplus or quit the field.

That a soul may sound strange to find it in its own right, but it is fate and he cannot successfully fight against it.

The legislation in Georgia and her neighbor states to help the farmer is a very real and practical one, and the creation of a new cash and cash marketing of his food products.

On the subject of better and universal schools for our native Anglo-Saxon children, Mr. Lever was equally wise and emphatic. It is not only a duty to us, but a need of civilization that we are letting so many of our pure American posterity grow up in illiteracy, while the foreign born and native born in eastern and mid-western states are given the best and finest educational facilities to be found anywhere on the globe.

NANMOOTH RAIL MERGER PROPOSED

Washington, July 8.—(United News.)—Permission to unify the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and the Spokane, Portland and Seattle railroads into one great system, 27,300 miles long, under the name of the Great Northern Pacific Railway company, was sought today in an application filed with the interstate commerce commission by the so-called Hill interests.

Granting of the proposed plan would fulfill the long cherished dream of the late James J. Hill, pioneer rail builder of the northwest.

Under the plan submitted to the commission, the transaction would involve $1,708,000,000, this constituting the total investments of the three merged roads and that of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, which, though operated separately, is controlled by the northern lines through stock possession.

The Northern Pacific, Great Northern and the Spokane, Portland and Seattle combine would give a total mileage of 15,900 miles. To this would be added the 11,400 miles under the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy line controlled under the unification plan by the proposed new Northern Pacific Railway company.

The new company, a Delaware corporation, would absorb the two northern lines by exchange of its new stock for the stock of the old companies on a share-for-share basis for their old stock. The Spokane, Portland and Seattle road is jointly operated by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, which owns all of the stock.

Each of the companies included in the giant plan has about $250,000,000 stock outstanding. The new concern would assume all outstanding bonds. The new company is authorized under its incorporation papers to issue 5,000,000 shares of stock. Today's application asked the commission for authority to issue 5,000,000 shares of no par value stock to be exchanged for the stock of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, the par value of which is $100 a share.

The investment represented in the combine are approximately as follows: Northern Pacific, $584,000,000; Great Northern, $480,000,000; Spokane, Portland and Seattle, $64,000,000; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, $580,000,000.

The application submitted to the commission said in part:

"The applicants believe it is a natural and highly proper evolution and highly in the public interest to take the further steps, authority for which is sought, whereby the control of the northern companies can be unified in the manner here proposed."

NAVAL CONFERENCE APPEARS DOOMED

each is subject to the same reasons for wanting certain types of ships. Mr. Bridgeman was asked if the United States continued to ask for a parity on cruisers, whether an agreement would be possible or whether the solution of the problem of the tonnage of cruisers and destroyers into a single total.

"That is exactly our position. We have advocated it all the time," replied Mr. Bridgeman.

This would include in the tonnage of the United States 200 destroyers, most of which are dismantled junk as well as venerable American cruisers worthless for modern warfare.

Opposed 10,000-Ton Ships.
"Great Britain never favored the 10,000-ton category of cruisers at Washington, and only built them for self-protection against our will. We now have a high total tonnage of cruisers, but it is not our fault. It was forced on us," Mr. Bridgeman declared.

The American delegation took direct issue to the British statesman. Turning to page 592 of the minutes of the Washington conference, he pointed to a statement at the tenth meeting when Lord Lee of Fareham said:

"Ten thousand-ton cruisers are ample in size," and the record was adopted. At that time England was building its first two cruisers of the Hawkins type, 9,500 tons, the largest cruisers then extant.

"We propose that the Washington ratio be extended to large cruisers and afterward the cruiser tonnage be limited to smaller ships and smaller guns," Mr. Bridgeman declared. "We are particularly anxious to reduce the eight-inch guns on cruisers to six inches, as the strength of an eight-inch gun is two and one-half times more powerful than a six-inch."

Armed Merchantmen.
"Nobody raised the question of armed merchantmen," he continued when asked if auxiliary cruisers converted from the merchant marine could carry six-inch guns. "We never asked any other country to."

Mr. Bridgeman expressed hope that with good will the conference would ultimately be successful and announced that a plenary session would be held.

At Monday's meeting the British delegates will defend publicly the thesis of making the principal economy and real disarmament.

The Tribune learned tonight that the English, during the secret technical committee meetings, have refused to scrap their superiority in big cruisers or listen to any proposals for limiting their preponderance in these craft, instead sticking solidly to the proposal to prevent any one else from building any more of this type of powerful cruisers.

ENGLAND EXPECTS COLLAPSE OF PARLEY.

Copyright, 1927, by The Constitution and the Associated Press.

London, July 8.—British officialdom and the newspapers today began preparing the public for the breaking up of the Geneva naval disarmament conference. Without much hedging it is practically admitted officially that Monday's plenary session is likely to be the winding without any results achieved, except limiting the size of torpedoes to 21 inches. The British are maintaining that the shipwreck is taking place on the rocks of the defensive security principle, and the United States not being able

Alloys Lazier Than Metals, Chemistry Professor Says

The Chicago Tribune. State College, Pa., July 8.—Imprisoned atoms, detected by the X-ray, explain why alloys as energy carriers are lazier than pure metals, Dr. Wheeler P. Davey, professor of physical chemistry in Pennsylvania State college, said today in an address before the Institute of Chemistry of the American Chemical society.

Some atoms are free, while others are slaves. Their environment shapes their behavior. Some cling together in twos and threes, others more about displacing rival atoms, and still others remain tied up. Atomic conduct, exposed by the X-ray, is disclosing knowledge of nature's processes, which, to base its cruiser strength on its needs.

Dispatches from Geneva today without exception were of the most gloomy tone, while at the same time official interest in the League of Nations disarmament conference are wondering if the failure of the Coolidge conference now will not make the resumption of the league conference in November more impossible than ever. British opinion is, however, that if the conference fails there is no need to be pessimistic.

The Daily Express says, "If the conference breaks there is no need to worry because no one ever really had faith in the American cause to Switzerland having no such commitments nor necessities as ours, but asking us to conform to its desires. There is nothing strange in that. It is remembered that the foreign policy of the United States often is closely related to the impending presidential election. Possibly America, with its natural shrewdness, sizes up the real use of Geneva more accurately than any other country."

NAVAL PARITY RIGHT ADMITTED BY BRITAIN.

Washington, July 8.—(United News.)—Great Britain acknowledges the right of the United States to naval parity, Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, told the United News today.

Sir Esme stated he had been instructed to remove all doubt which has arisen on this subject.

But while the ambassador is endeavoring to remove ill-feeling due to the British attitude at Geneva, he will not attempt to influence the actual negotiations, he intimated.

The matter is "in the hands of the experts," he declared, "and theirs is an extremely difficult task. It is up to them to find a solution whereby the different needs of the two nations, one a continent and the other an island, will be reconciled."

Although Sir Esme stated his country was anxious to come to an agreement, he gave the impression that Britain is resigned to the belief that the conference might fail. He expressed the hope that in such case no ill-feeling would result.

Speaking to the British people, as individuals, Sir Esme said they would welcome a reduction in naval armaments, which in turn would bring a tax reduction. But he added, they are anxious that their navy should not be reduced below a figure necessary for the security of the empire.

The ambassador stated he expected to remain in Washington for several days in anticipation of messages from his country, relating to the Geneva conference, for delivery to the state department.

small farmer is concerned, is a thing of the past. Is that startling?"

The former congressman declared that Georgia cannot compete with Texas in growing cotton except by producing a better grade. The small cotton farmer, who is creating the surplus around our necks, must go into something else, something that provides more profit, more conveniences and more comforts, he said.

"These existents—they do not live," Mr. Lever declared, "who with their low standards of living create this surplus which means no profits for all of us, these inefficients must be put into industries, lumber, furniture, crockery and a thousand and one other different propositions."

"Power, the electric spark, is going to decentralize industry, going out into every section of the state and the south."

Association's Origin.
James A. Holloman, associate editor of The Constitution, in closing the meeting in the hall of the Georgia association, in the day of the advent of the boll weevil.

"In Turner county," Mr. Holloman said, "in that little county impoverished by the boll weevil, the Georgia county plan developed. George Betts, banker and sawmill man, gave his life as surely as any soldier ever gave his life on a battlefield to this great movement. This campaign is going to be put over 150 per cent and $150,000 goal sought."

Mr. Holloman said that he had never known a man in all his experience in Washington who did more for agriculture in the south than Frank Lever, for eight years chairman of the house agricultural committee.

"Let's follow his leadership," he said, "and follow what he has had to say in solving the problems which face us."

Ragsdale Welcomes.
Mayor Ragsdale, of Atlanta, welcomed the directors and members of the Georgia association and assured them that the key of the city was theirs.

H. H. Tifton, of Tifton county, toastmaster for the evening, and vice president of the association, said that results had proved that abandoned farms could be populated by farmers from other states if men "ready to go," with suitable homes on them and in other ways ready to start active farming.

Aubrey Milan, member of the marketing committee of the association, declared that marketing had shown that grade, quality and standardization, plus containers, were among the most essential items of Georgia to take its place among the great producing states.

J. M. Thrash, of Douglas, spoke on national advertising; J. G. Newton, of Americus, reported on the success of the 7,500 prospect list, and the visiting of the farmers on this list in other states; Dr. Frank E. Jaynes spoke of the financial campaign for the association; Eugene R. Allen, of Atlanta, told of the tentative budget allowances.

FIRST WOMAN MEMBER OF COMMONS IS DYING

Dublin, July 8.—(United News.)—Countess Constance Georgina Markievicz, picturesque leader among the militant Irishwomen who spurred on their revolution against Great Britain, and their civil war against the new-born Irish Free State, was believed dying Friday night following two operations for appendicitis.

Countess Markievicz—she obtained her title when she married in 1900 the Russian Count Dunin de Markievicz—had the additional distinction of being the first woman ever elected to the British house of parliament—before the Anglo-American Lady Astor.

But Countess Markievicz was elected as a Sinn Féiner, and unwilling to take the necessary oath of allegiance to King George V, never took her seat.

In 1916, Countess Markievicz was a leading participant in the Easter rebellion that started the Irish revolution. She was sentenced to death by British authorities, but was reprieved.

MAITLAND GETS COLONEL'S RATING FOLLOWING HOP

Madison, Wis., July 8.—(United News.)—It's Colonel Maitland now, Lieutenant Lester J. Maitland, who flew to Hawaii from California, has been commissioned a colonel in the state through Assistant Solicitor Ed A. Stephens in his argument to the jury this morning and the defense will ask for an acquittal on the grounds that the young woman met her death accidentally.

The defense contends that Wingard secured the pistol after he had been held up by two white men on the Sunday night preceding the slaying and that he carried the weapon for his own protection against the holdup men.

Numerous character witnesses were placed on the stand by the defense late Friday afternoon after the state closed its case. Several of the witnesses testified as to the good character for sobriety of Wingard in his community and corroborated the testimony of witnesses that Wingard had planned to meet friends who were to accompany him home after he had called upon the girl on the night the slaying occurred.

The trial throughout the afternoon was marked by clashes of counsel. Attorney William Schley Howard, of defense, leaning to his feet on numerous occasions to file objections to alleged "irrelevant and hearsay evidence" from state's witnesses and Assistant Solicitor Stephens insisting that defense counsel stick "closely to the rule" regarding the introduction of evidence as to the defendant's character and other legal procedure.

Slim and solemn, Wingard sat at defense table displaying a keen interest in every move made at the trial, the outcome of which means life or death in the electric chair. Clustered about him sat his mother, father and other relatives. J. M. Holloman, Wingard's employer, sat with Attorney James A. Branch, who is also a member of defense counsel.

At the state's counsel table, Assistant Solicitor Stephens conferred frequently with Solicitor General S. W. Ragsdale, of the Tallapoosa circuit, who is assisting in the prosecution. Directly behind this group were seen Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Duncan, mother and father of the slain woman; Mrs. J. P. Wigley, Mrs. Alvina Carter, Mrs. Emma Christler, Mrs. Ruby Hulsey, Mrs. Elsie Leach, Miss Edna Duncan and J. C. and Sam Duncan, sisters and brothers of the victim.

The jury was ordered "locked up" for the night at 9:25 by Judge Ponce. Directly following a conference with counsel, the talesmen were carried to the Henry Grady hotel.

SLEUTH CAPTURES LIQUOR-LADEN CAR AFTER PURSUIT

Although he was returning a tight coupe to the city that had been stolen and recovered in Cummings, Ga., City Detective John W. Lowe, early Friday night "stepped on the gas" enough to keep in view of a heavy sedan until the sedan reached the city limits and then a chase began which resulted in the confiscation of the sedan and 205 gallons of north Georgia corn liquor.

Soon after Detective Lowe came into the city limits behind the big car he noticed some few cars packed in the back of it and gave chase. A smoke screen was turned loose but Detective Lowe persisted and at Tenth street he fired two bullets at the speeding car, blowing out both front tires and forcing it to stop.

Two occupants of the run car jumped out and ran with Officer Lowe in hot pursuit, but the youths outran him and escaped. He returned to the car and found the liquor which was taken to police station along with the confiscated sedan.

ENGINEER AT HOTEL STABBED BY NEGRO

M. L. Phillips, engineer for the Henry Grady hotel, was taken to Grady hospital Friday morning for stab wounds received in an altercation with a negro, Wesley Wright, employed by a local transfer and baggage company.

Details of the affair were not given to hospital attendants and police have started an investigation. The negro escaped after having cut Mr. Phillips several times, it was stated and is still at large. It was said that the argument resulted in the placing of some baggage at the hotel. Mr. Phillips' injuries were said to be slight.

WINGARD MAKES PLEA FOR LIFE

didn't know that I had my hand on the trigger.

The youthful defendant said that members of the Duncan girl's family knew that he didn't intentionally kill Jewell and that the shot was wholly accidental. His defense testimony was that he had been drinking and said that he had never taken but one drink in his life. Pointing at his mother, who sat listening attentively to the defense table, Wingard asserted, that testimony regarding his alleged use of profane language was false. "I respect the ladies," he said, "and I wouldn't want anyone to use profane language in the presence of my dear mother nor my sister. I have never taken the name of God in vain," he added.

State Guests Doubt.
Assistant Solicitor Ed A. Stephens spent the forenoon and up until 4:20 o'clock weaving a web of doubt about the claims of the youthful alleged slayer and contending that Wingard had premeditated the "dastardly and cowardly" crime in a fit of jealousy because the young woman had rejected his suit.

The state introduced witnesses to testify that Wingard had never carried a pistol until the night of the murder and that he went to the Duncan home in an attempt to effect a reconciliation with the slain woman and failing to succeed, fired a fatal shot into her brain.

The death penalty will be asked by the state through Assistant Solicitor Ed A. Stephens in his argument to the jury this morning and the defense will ask for an acquittal on the grounds that the young woman met her death accidentally.

SUMPTUARY LAWS ARE HIT BY RITCHIE

French Lick, Ind., July 8.—(AP)—The United States is passing from a government of law to a government of men, and a power that often approaches tyranny has been vested in the federal government, Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, declared in an address prepared for delivery here today before the Indiana State Bar association.

"The government is no longer the creature and protector of our individual rights, but is rapidly becoming the dictator of them," the speaker asserted. "Today local self-government furnishes the only efficient, effective, workable basis on which the diversified and changing problems in our diversified and changing land can ever be practically settled."

The American government has become the most regulatory in the western world, outside of Russia and Italy, Governor Ritchie asserted. He declared inspectors and spies and official regulators follow the American from the day he takes his first nourishment.

NINE ALIENS CAUGHT IN LOWER EVERGLADES

Miami, Fla., July 8.—(AP)—Immigration officers today captured nine aliens in the lower Everglades and sought 19 others said to have landed in two small boats from Havana last night at Cape Sable, the desolate stretch of southern Florida coast.

Aly Osman, 32, of Jacksonville, Fla., claims he is a naturalized citizen, was taken into custody on an alien smuggling charge when he was found near Cape Sable. He was said to have admitted that he came to the small village to meet his sister-in-law, one of two well dressed women in the group caught. Advice from Home-land, where the prisoners are in jail, reported the majority of aliens as Turks and Syrians.

Salam Mitry, one of the aliens, told officers... the party left Havana in two boats early Wednesday night and reached Cape Sable about 10 o'clock last night. He said his companions had eaten nothing since leaving Cuba.

200 AMERICAN LIVES IN DANGER

Washington, July 8.—(United News.)—Two hundred or more Americans are endangered by fighting around Tsing-Tao, China, and may be evacuated, the state department was advised today.

Bluejackets and marines from 15 American submarines and destroyers are standing by ready to protect the civilian evacuation, if necessary.

The United States has entered into no agreement with Japan and Great Britain for military occupation of the Tsing-Tao region, it was announced at the department. A report that such an agreement was made had been widely circulated.

The American consul at Tsing-Tao reported Chinese nationalists as encircling the city preparatory to attacking it. Their position has been strengthened by the defection of General Chen Yen Sen, whose army is encamped at Chengyang, 30 miles to the north.

KEG OF POWDER FOUND CONCEALED IN COAL TENDER

Winchester, Va., July 8.—(AP)—The engine of the Baltimore and Ohio train from Harpers Ferry narrowly escaped being blown up here yesterday when Earl Horn, 61-year-old, discovered a large keg of powder in the coal pile on the tender. Horn was in the act of shoveling the powder in the fire box when the coal when he noticed that the blackened keg was not a lump of coal.

A tag attached to the keg bore the number "21." Railroad officials expressed the opinion that it was accidentally placed with the coal at the mine.

Woman's Party To Carry Fight To Rural Regions

Colorado Springs, Col., July 8.—(AP)—Members of the national woman's party made it plain today at their annual convention that their campaign for an equal rights amendment to the federal constitution will be prosecuted thoroughly.

The fight to make women equal with men before the law, which heretofore has received its support chiefly from women in the larger cities, is to be carried to the rural regions.

Miss Maud Younger, chairman of the party's congressional committee, intends to revive her famous card catalogue system, she "old the convention. This consists of keeping a minute record of the attitude and actions of all members of congress with regard to the equal rights proposal. It was used successfully in the campaign for equal suffrage, which resulted in the nineteenth amendment.

The every-day duty of being a house maker was extolled by Mrs. Thomas W. Winters, of Dayton, O., as being one of the most worthwhile and dignified professions for women. She declared that recognition of the home maker as a professional woman was a necessary step in the progress of American feminism.

SALEM MITRY, ONE OF THE ALIENS,

&lt;

OUTCAST

By Elizabeth York Miller

SYNOPSIS.
A band of crooks stumbles on the fact that the wife of Sir Adrian Shale, who supposedly had died six months before in Italy, is alive. It is Mimi Winchell, who makes the discovery in a small, out of the way village in Italy. Mimi poses as a widow, but she is really the wife of 'Charles' Hobson, leader of the crooks.

A MUTUAL SURPRISE.

Sir Adrian gave the inquiry agents what small information he recollected. Ferguson had a younger sister who was a dressmaker. Sometimes Beatrice had ordered things from Ferguson's sister, but Shale did not know what her name was, whether she was married or not. There would be receipts somewhere for Beatrice's dress bills, and perhaps amongst them he might discover a clue. He hung up the receiver and looked again amongst the neatly docketed packages. Everything pertaining to Beatrice during life and at death had been shelved away in this box. There would never be anything more.

Presently he found a promising bundle, and, opening it, discovered that apparently Beatrice had wandered over a large field in search of the lovely raiment for which she had been so famous. She had dealt with at least 20 different firms. Shale narrowed them down to 12—one could strike out the milliners, the boot shops, the jewelers.

He made a list and sent it on to the private inquiry agent, whose instructions were merely to find the sister of his late wife's maid, Anna Ferguson, and make an appointment with her to see him. After all, it might not be such a difficult matter, providing, of course, that Ferguson's sister was not too obscure to have any place amongst those high-sounding firms. The sister, he, of course, what women call a "little dressmaker."

Shale endured two anxious days. More and more it seemed to him curious that during the whole of the nine months which had elapsed since his wife's death he had heard nothing of or from Anna Ferguson.

All the things that wild woman, Mimi Winchell or Hobson, or whatever her name might be, had hurled at him came echoing back from memory. That impudent little woman had made impossible statements, and had it not been for the man who had impersonated himself in the last act of Beatrice's life, Adrian Shale would have been inclined to think that Mimi was merely a lunatic.

At the end of the second day the inquiry agent got Shale on the telephone and told him the woman he wanted to get into touch with—Anna Ferguson's sister—traded under the name of Madame George, and that he pleased to see him at her place of business in Dover street tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

That night he scarcely slept. He rose at dawn and took a long walk in the park before breakfast. Promptly at 11 he was in Dover street.

An imposing establishment, this. He had no idea Ferguson's sister was flourishing. Her business occupied the whole of a big Georgian house, with a great gold lettered sign dazzling the front of it, bay trees in tubs guarding the marble entrance, and a maroon liveried commissionaire attending the curb.

This was no ordinary shop. One did not open the door and walk in; one rang a bell. Adrian Shale rang, and the door was opened to him by a slender, fair-haired girl in black silk.

For an instant they stared at each other in mutual surprise; then the girl's lips quivered and Shale smiled sardonically.

"How do you do, Miss Winchell?" he said. "How interesting to meet you here. I have an appointment with Madame George. Will you see that she knows I have come?"

Doris, her face very white, nodded, and fled.

Shale looked about him as he waited. There was a marble floored corridor, richly paneled walls against which hung two remarkably fine old portraits—portraits of beautiful ladies of the Gainsborough school and period—and heavy curtains of dull gold velvet shielding the entrance to rooms on either side. Shale surmised he should have been shown into one of those rooms and not left to do his waiting in the hall.

The unexpected appearance of the beautiful girl, to whom he had been so much attracted during that month of her stay in Grantwick, gave him furiously to think. What was she doing here? Not up to any good, of course. He felt sad and uncomfortable. He had . . . almost loved her. Her bright face, her youth and innocence—as he had supposed—might have helped him to get over Beatrice's death and what Beatrice had done to him. For just one little space, hope

Six Atlanta Net Stars Off to Memphis Today

Seek Laurels in Southern Tennis Tourney Starting Monday—Mooney Heads List.

BY BEN COTHMAN.

Just one tennis tournament after another. Six of Atlanta's best, having just finished the annual city court session, will set sail this afternoon at 4 o'clock for Memphis, on the bank of the Mississippi, and the 1927 southern tennis tournament, which begins Monday.

Jack Mooney, he of the chop stroke; Bryan Grant, the youngster who wins junior and senior titles with equal ease and adeptness; F. C. (Hop) Owens, experienced and winner of the 1922 tourney; Malen Courts, the rising young flash; Berry Grant, the stylist, and Jack Simpson, former city champion.

All of them, off for Memphis with but a single thought: To bring the emblem denoting supremacy on the clay courts of the south back to Atlanta. For two years it has been in other cities. The late Jack Codwell won it last for Atlanta in 1924.

This Atlanta field is formidable, no doubt about it. And one of them should go all the way through. Last year it was Jack Mooney vs. Ed Pfeiffer in the finals, and Ed Pfeiffer won a tough, grueling match.

Cook To Lead Local Golfers In State Meet

Watts Gunn May Not Enter Annual Tourney at Savannah.

BY WHITNER CARY.

It seems but yesterday, that all the golfing brethren from this city, or at least a good percentage of those who make championship scores, were getting ready to head toward Charlotte and the southern amateur. And now, with the echo of the final putt in that event fresh in the ears of all, the Georgia state championship at Savannah looms just a few mashes shots away. To be exact, the tournament gets off next Wednesday, which day happens to be July 13.

From all signs, rumors, omens and information running loose in Atlanta golf circles, it appears that move Gate City golfers are going to make the jaunt to Savannah than journeyed to the North Carolina city. If this be true Savannah is going to be fairly well supplied with championship hunters from this neck of the woods, for if memory serves us correctly there were close to 30 from this city who took off for Charlotte.

At the heels of the Atlanta list is none other than Gene Cook, who swept through the field last year and also the year before and is the only golfer who has a dual win to his credit.

Then there is Dave Black, brother into Charlie Black, Jr., and the young man who performed so well in the final at Charlotte. He gives every promise of being an even better golfer than his illustrious brother which is praise enough at the present time. Speaking of Charlie reminds me that this tournament may not see him in action. He was feeling none too well at Charlotte and, while still from a sick man, may decide that the July heat of Savannah is not just the right tonic at this stage. Charlie will be dealt a severe blow if he stays away. While never having won the event, he has twice been runner-up, and he is a golfer of considerable ability. He is required to watch the others from the sidelines.

It's a fast field, but the hopes of the Atlanta entries are flying high, and each individual is capable of creating a healthy disturbance before he is required to watch the others from the sidelines.

Unless his golf has tapered off considerably from the brand that was exhibited over the Charlotte hills, Chick Strickler is going to make the best of the boys step in high. Chick went strong in the southern. He qualified in the first flight and then proceeded to put out the low medalist in his initial match. He had his second match dormie three when over-confidence, combined with a burst of inspired golf from his opponent, put him out of the running.

At the present time no official club teams have been named from Atlanta, but should all the players go to Savannah who made the trip to Charlotte, it is probable that the same line-ups would hold good.

The tournament starts Wednesday with a qualifying round of 18 holes. The scores made in this round will determine the occupants of the first 18 of 18 each. Match play starts the following day with one round being played in all flights. Friday will see two rounds in all flights, including the defeated eight of the first flight. This "defeated eight" flight is a sort of consolation event for those who were beaten in the first round of the championship flight which will consist of a 36-hole jaunt. All matches in the championship until the final will be over the 18-hole route.

The field is expected to be a particularly strong one with leading players from all parts of Georgia present.

Not Alone.

Tommy Theronow is not the only injured member of the Cardinals. Bob O'Farrell has a sore arm, Chick Huffy is out with a sore knee, while Ray Blades and Billy Southworth are playing regularly although limping with injured knees.

What's Next?

Spiller's vacant dell is ringing with rumors. In fact the rumors are getting to be the only paid admissions. The Crackers have been holding secret practices at game-time for two or three days and if the shedding condition continues there won't be any umpires in a couple of days.

There is even a rumor afloat that Rel Jackson is planning to put the scribes in the field against the Bears in the last game and let the Crackers cover the game.

In that case we offer the following lineup for approval; with reasons for placing players in the positions indicated.

THE WRITER, RF.—Because he's a runt and might get a pass and because he couldn't do much harm in right.

TOM THOMPSON, CF.—Because he hopes like Mule Haas and could rest in the shade of the score board while somebody else batted for him.

DOC ALLEN, LF.—So he would be far away and the umpires couldn't hear him yell, "Call 'em right!" He will also be able to give any needed prescriptions.

GUY BUTLER, 1B.—Because Guy is constructed like Babe Ruth and should be a great cleanup hitter. Also it would be difficult to miss Guy when throwing to first.

JIM BURNS, 3B.—Just because Jim is always after Butler for something or other—why not in the lineup?

SAM GLASSMAN, SS.—Because Sam never misses anything—when he is detailing.

SERGT. BOB GORDON, 2B.—Because Bob is the only one with a uniform and he would be located in a central position.

ED DANFORTH, P.—Because blood will tell and while we don't make any claims—you know Dave Danforth, Ed's great uncle.

MORGAN BLAKE, C.—Because Morgan admits he can catch anything and would be a good man on Ed's shiners.

UMPIRES, ANDY GUMP AND SKIPPY.—(Sometimes known as Buck Weaver and Steamboat Johnson.)

BAT BOY AND MASCOT—Clarence Nixon.

BARNETT COPS MRS. WRIGHT GOLD PRIZE WINS WOMEN'S IN SHOOT HERE DOUBLES TITLE

Jupe Pluie laid into the proceedings of the Old Guard rifle team's shoot at the Atlanta rifle range Friday afternoon with a heavy hand and caused the scores to be held down somewhat. The shoot was a telegraphic affair in which the team competed in the Centennial Legion shoot next Friday at Seagrist, 465. The result of the local team's standing in this national shoot will not be known for a couple of days.

Lieutenant J. E. Barnett with 49 out of a possible 50 on the 200-yard range and the same score on the 500-yard range, had a total of 98 for high gun of the afternoon. He won the $50 gold medal offered by Guy Woolford, a member of the Old Guard. He was also crowned 1927 champion of the Old Guard.

The Centennial Legion cup match is an annual event competed for by teams over the entire United States and the winner of the cup for 1927 will not be known until all team scores have been officially certified to the official staff at Seagrist, N. J.

Following are the scores:

Lt. J. E. Barnett	49	49
Lt. Russell Bentall	50	47
Mr. W. E. Wright	49	43

AROUND THE BIG LEAGUE CIRCUITS

Charley Root hit Pittsburgh to one hit and no runs Friday, the Chicago Cubs increasing their lead in the National league.

Johnny Gooch made the Corsair's lone single in the eighth while the Cubs scored their only run of 1927. Gooch was the second in "Pie" Traynor's wild throw, which followed a two-bas hit by Grimm.

Hugh Critz Cincinnati second baseman, singled in the eleventh and the "aces" full, enabling the Reds to defeat the Phillies, 8 to 5.

The world's champion St. Louis Cardinals, lost to the Boston Braves by a 3 to 2 score, and the Giants defeated Brooklyn, 6 to 2. Kent Greenfield, obtained from New York in a trade for Lenton, pitched winning ball against the Cards, while Benton was beating the Robins.

Senators Win Two.

The Washington Senators, although out in both games, won a doubleheader at Cleveland, 7 to 4 and 4 to 3. Four errors by the White Sox helped the Red Sox to an 11 to 5 victory.

Lefty Grove, Athletics' southpaw, although in trouble throughout most

Dazzy Vance The Second Joins Atlanta

Frank Chilton, Cedartown Wonder, Signs With Crackers; Real Hurler.

BY TOM THOMPSON.

Georgia's boy wonder now belongs to the Crackers.

This youngster, the reincarnation of Dazzy Vance, will report to the Spiller menage at an early date.

His name is Frank Chilton. His age is 19. His form, they say, is perfect—or something like that. And, right now, he pitches for the Central of Georgia shop team at Cedartown. Mr. Chilton just about comprises the pitching staff of this outfit, but he's reported a copious corps all by himself.

Chilton's home is in Anniston, Ala. His age was such that his parents had to pass on his contract before he could sign it. But despite all that, Rel Jackson Spiller came forth with the statement that he had preferred joining the Crackers to both New Orleans and Birmingham.

He's Got It.

Yours truly knows for a fact that Larry Gilbert sent emissaries to offer the Cedartown celebrity a rich smart salary, to be delivered around or about the Pelican payday every 30 days, but the fact remains that he has signed with the Crackers.

Continuing youngster Pat Monahan, scout for the Red Sox of Boston, is most loquacious.

"What's he got?"

"Say, come tell you, that kid's got the works. He's got curves, good ones, he's got speed like one of these new little racers, a smart change of pace. He's a good knurler, he's got the kid's wonder, and if you think he ain't your crazy."

Chilton's performances in a past game at Cedartown are illustrative. He took the Cox-Cola outfit, under the direction of Kid Clay and struck out 21 men during the course of nine innings.

Then he grabbed hold of this Pea class outfit and whiffed 15 without much trouble.

So he might be able to do something in Class A baseball.

Senators Recall Rookie Pitcher

Washington, July 8.—(AP)—The Washington Nationals have made another effort to strengthen their pit-ting staff by recalling Dick Coffman, 20-year-old rookie right-hander, from the Jersey City team of the International league. Coffman was farmed out to Jersey City after he had been purchased last year from Chattanooga of the Southern association.

PELS COP SECOND.

Birmingham, Ala., July 8.—Two errors by the Birmingham infield and a double by the home pitcher combined to give the Pels a second-place finish in the series from Birmingham, 46 to 0. The Pels' earned 13 hits from the offerings of Brett, Woolford and Porter. Nick and Anderson hit for the circuit.
